

FILED _____ LODGED _____
RECEIVED _____ COPY _____

AUG 28 2000

CLERK U S DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF ARIZONA
BY _____ DEPUTY

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

INTERNATIONAL BROTHERHOOD OF) ELECTRICAL WORKERS, LOCAL) UNION 640,) Plaintiff,) Vs.)
JAKE DUECK and JANE DOE)
DUECK, husband and wife,) Defendants.)

No. CIV 00-0751 PHX RCB

O R D E R

On May 24, 2000, Plaintiff filed a motion to remand this action to state court. On June 12, 2000, Defendant¹ filed a response to that motion as well as a motion to dismiss this action as being barred under the applicable statute of limitations. After receiving one extension of time, Plaintiff on July 13, 2000, filed a motion to enlarge the time period for filing a response to Defendant's motion to dismiss until after

¹ Only Jake Dueck has appeared as a defendant in this matter. He has affirmatively pled that he is not married and that there is no Jane Doe Dueck.

14

1 the court has ruled on its motion to remand. Defendant has filed 2 an opposition to that request for an indefinite extension of 3 time. Having carefully considered the arguments raised by the 4 parties, the court will now rule on all of these various matters.

5 I. BACKGROUND

6 In its complaint filed in Arizona Superior Court in Maricopa 7 County on March 3, 2000, Plaintiff International Brotherhood of 8 Electric Workers Local 640 ("IBEW Local 640") alleged the 9 following facts. IBEW Local 640 is a union with members in 10 Arizona. (Compl. ¶ 1). Defendant was a member of IBEW Local 640
11 at all relevant times and as a member was contractually obligated 12 to comply with all of the rules and obligations of membership.
13 (Id. ¶ 5). In November 1997, Defendant was accused in writing by 14 other members of IBEW Local 640 of violating his membership
15 agreement with the union. In accordance with the IBEW 16 Constitution and the By-Laws of Local 640, a trial board was duly 17 established to hear and decide the merits of the accusations.
18 The requirements for fair notice and a hearing set forth in the 19 Constitution and By-Laws were followed and Defendant was found to 20 have violated his membership agreement. As a penalty for that 21 breach, Defendant was fined the sum of $9,063.00. (Id. ¶ 6).
22 Pursuant to his membership agreement with IBEW Local 640, 23 Defendant is obligated to pay that assessment, but has failed to 24 do so. (Id. ¶ 7). According to IBEW Local 640, the IBEW
25 Constitution and Local 640's By-Laws embody a contract that each 26 member enters into when joining the union. (Id. ¶ 3). IBEW
27 Local 640's complaint seeks an award of the sum of $9,063.00 plus 28 interest. (Id. ¶ 9). In the first paragraph of its complaint,

1 IBEW Local 640 states that it "brings this action pursuant to 2 Rule 23.2 Arizona Rules of Civil Procedure and 29 U.S.C. §§
3 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5)." (Id. ¶ 1).

4 After filing an answer and two amended answers to the 5 complaint in state court, Defendant removed the action to this 6 court on April 25, 2000.² Defendant removed the action on the 7 basis that this court had original jurisdiction over the matter
8 under the federal question statute, 28 U.S.C. § 1331.
9 Specifically, Defendant asserted that the action arose under the 10 laws of the United States because Plaintiff stated in its 11 complaint that the action was brought "pursuant to 29 U.S.C. §§ 12 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5)," and because Plaintiff's complaint is 13 completely preempted by Section 301 of the Labor Management 14 Relations Act ("LMRA"). On May 24, 2000, Plaintiff filed a 15 motion to remand the action to Arizona Superior Court.

16 II. LEGAL STANDARD

17 The removal statute upon which Defendant relied in removing 18 this action to federal court provides in relevant part:

19 Except as otherwise expressly provided by Act of Congress, 20 any civil action brought in a State court of which the 21 district courts of the United States have original 22 jurisdiction, may be removed by the defendant or the 23 defendants, to the district court of the United States for 24 the district and division embracing the place where such 25 action is pending.

26 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a). An action filed in state court may be 27 removed pursuant to this statute "only if the district court

28 ² Plaintiff had served Defendant with a summons and a copy of the complaint on March 30, 2000. Accordingly, Defendant timely filed the notice of removal within thirty (30) days of service of the lawsuit. See 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b).

1 could have exercised jurisdiction over the action if originally 2 filed there." Duncan v. Stuetzle, 76 F.3d 1480, 1485 (9th Cir.
3 1996). Courts "strictly construe the removal statute against 4 removal jurisdiction," and thus "[f]ederal jurisdiction must be 5 rejected if there is any doubt as to the right of removal in the 6 first instance." Gaus v. Miles, Inc., 980 F.2d 564, 566 (9th
7 Cir. 1992); see Duncan, 76 F.3d at 1485 (noting that courts
8 strictly construe removal statute in order to serve Congress' 9 purpose of restricting the jurisdiction of federal courts on 10 removal). Due to this strict construction against removal 11 jurisdiction, the defendant(s) removing the action bear(s) the 12 burden of establishing that removal is proper, i.e., that the 13 federal court has original jurisdiction over the matter. See 14 Duncan, 76 F.3d at 1485; Gaus, 980 F.2d at 566.

15 Defendant removed this case based on this court's 16 jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Accordingly, he must 17 establish that IBEW Local 640's complaint alleged at least one 18 claim "arising under" federal law. Duncan, 76 F.3d at 1485; see 19 28 U.S.C. § 1331. In order for a claim to "arise under" federal 20 law, a right or immunity created by federal law must be an 21 essential element of that claim. Carpenters S. Cal. Admin. Corp.
22 v. Majestic Hous., 743 F.2d 1341, 1344 (9th Cir. 1984). The U.S.
23 Supreme Court has "long held that '[t]he presence or absence of 24 federal-question jurisdiction is governed by the well-pleaded 25 complaint rule, which provides that federal jurisdiction exists 26 only when a federal question is presented on the face of the 27 plaintiff's properly pleaded complaint.'" Rivet v. Regions Bank 28 of La., 118 S. Ct. 921, 925 (1998) (quoting Caterpillar Inc. v.

1 Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 2429 (1987)); see 2 also Duncan, 76 F.3d at 1485 ("[I]n order for a complaint to 3 state a claim 'arising under' federal law, it must be clear from 4 the face of the plaintiff's well-pleaded complaint that there is 5 a federal question."). The Supreme Court has set forth two other 6 general rules related to the well-pleaded complaint rule. First, 7 because a "defense is not part of a plaintiff's properly pleaded 8 statement of his or her claim[,] . . . 'a case may not be removed 9 to federal court on the basis of a federal defense, . . . even if 10 the defense is anticipated in the plaintiff's complaint, and even 11 if both parties admit that the defense is the only question truly 12 at issue in the case.'" Rivet, 118 S. Ct. at 925 (quoting
13 Franchise Tax Bd. of Cal. v. Construction Laborers Vacation Trust 14 for S. Cal., 463 U.S. 1, 14, 103 S. Ct. 2841, 2848 (1983)).
15 Second, a plaintiff cannot "artfully plead" his complaint "to 16 defeat removal by omitting to plead necessary federal questions."
17 Rivet, 118 S. Ct. at 925 (quoting Franchise Tax Bd. of Cal., 463 18 U.S. at 22, 103 S. Ct. at 2853). If a plaintiff has so artfully 19 pled his complaint, a court may uphold removal even though no 20 federal question appears on the face of the complaint. Rivet, 21 118 S. Ct. at 925. As part of this artful pleading doctrine, 22 removal is permitted "where federal law completely preempts a 23 plaintiff's state-law claim." Id. The Supreme Court has offered 24 the following distinction between complete federal preemption 25 permitting removal and the ordinary defense of federal 26 preemption, which is not a sufficient ground for removal:
27 Although federal preemption is ordinarily a defense, "[o]nce 28 an area of state law has been completely pre-empted, any claim purportedly based on that pre-empted state-law claim

1 is considered, from its inception, a federal claim, and 2 therefore arises under federal law."

3 Id. (quoting Caterpillar Inc., 482 U.S. at 393, 107 S. Ct. at 4 2430).

5 III. DISCUSSION

6 In support of its motion to remand this action to state 7 court, Plaintiff argues that "state law governs union lawsuits to 8 collect disciplinary fines." International Bhd. of Elec.
9 Workers, Local Union No. 986 v. Smith, 602 N.E.2d 782, 787 (Ohio 10 Ct. App. 1992). It further cites a statement by the Supreme 11 Court that disciplinary actions in enforcement of union rules is 12 a "federally unentered enclave open to state law." Scofield v.
13 NLRB, 394 U.S. 423, 426 n.3, 89 S. Ct. 1154, 1156 n.3 (1969). It 14 maintains that the present lawsuit constitutes just such a 15 collection action, and thus raises only a state-law claim not 16 properly subject to removal.

17 In response to Plaintiff's motion to remand, Defendant 18 raises two grounds in support of its assertion that federal 19 question jurisdiction exists in this case. First, he argues that 20 Plaintiff's own complaint states that it is brought "pursuant to 21 29 U.S.C. §§ 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5)." Second, he argues that 22 Plaintiff's complaint is completely preempted by Section 301 of 23 the LMRA and thus arises under that federal law. The court will 24 discuss both of these arguments separately, beginning with 25 Defendant's reliance on the statement in the complaint that the 26 action is brought pursuant to 29 U.S.C. §§ 158(b)(1)(A) and 27 411(a)(5).

28 . . .

1 A. Does Plaintiff's Action Arise under Federal Law Based on 2 Statement in Complaint that Action Is Brought Pursuant to 29
3 U.S.C. §§ 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5)?

4 Without any further discussion on the issue, Defendant
5 nakedly asserts in his response to Plaintiff's motion to remand 6 that removal was proper because by its very terms the complaint
7 was brought pursuant to federal law, namely 29 U.S.C. §§ 8 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5). See Compl. ¶ 1 ("Plaintiff brings 9 this action pursuant to . . . 29 U.S.C. §§ 158(b)(1)(A) and 10 411(a)(5)."). Plaintiff, on the other hand, argues that this one 11 excerpt from its complaint does not establish federal question
12 jurisdiction because "[t]he Court is not bound by [his] language 13 . . . and it must look to the substance of the pleading, not the 14 labels used by [him]." McCastle v. Rollins Env'tl. Servs., 514 F.
15 Supp. 936, 938 (M.D. La. 1981).

16 Reading 29 U.S.C. §§ 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5), it is clear 17 that they do not provide a cause of action for Plaintiff against 18 Defendant due to his nonpayment of the fine imposed against him 19 for violating membership regulations. Rather, these two 20 statutory provisions provide a cause of action by union members 21 against unions for unfair labor practices. Section 158(b)(1)(A) 22 of Title 28 of the United States Code provides in relevant part:

23 (b) Unfair labor practices by labor organization

24 It shall be an unfair labor practice for a labor 25 organization or its agents -

26 (1) to restrain or coerce (A) employees in the exercise 27 of the rights guaranteed in section 157 of this title: 28 Provided, That this paragraph shall not impair the right of a labor organization to prescribe its own rules with respect to the acquisition or retention of membership therein. . . .

The Supreme Court in Scofield v. NLRB, 394 U.S. 423, 89 S. Ct.

1 1154 (1969), held that 29 U.S.C. § 158(b)(1)(A) does not 2 establish a cause of action by unions against their members for 3 violating membership agreements. In Scofield, a union had fined 4 several of its members for violating rules established by the 5 union regarding production ceilings. Id. at 426, 89 S. Ct. at 6 1156. The Court held that "the regulation of the relationship 7 between union and employee is a contractual matter governed by 8 local law." Id. at 426 n.3, 89 S. Ct. at 1156 n.3. The Court 9 further noted that disciplinary actions by a union against its 10 members are not affirmatively protected by 29 U.S.C. § 11 158(b)(1)(A), but rather merely do not violate that provision.
12 Accordingly, disciplinary actions by a union against its members 13 are a "'federally unentered enclave' open to state law." Id. at 14 426 n.3, 89 S. Ct. at 1156 n.3.

15 Section 411(a)(5) of Title 29 of the United States Code 16 provides:

17 No member of any labor organization may be fined, suspended, 18 expelled, or otherwise disciplined except for nonpayment of 19 dues by such organization or by any officer thereof unless 20 such member has been (A) served with written specific charges; (B) given a reasonable time to prepare his defense;
(C) afforded a full and fair hearing.

21 With regard to 29 U.S.C. § 411, both the Supreme Court and the 22 Ninth Circuit have held that Congress intended that provision to 23 protect only the rights of union members, not unions or their 24 employees and officers. See Finnegan v. Leu, 456 U.S. 431, 438, 25 102 S. Ct. 1867, 1871 (1982) (noting that 29 U.S.C. § 411(a)(5) 26 protects union members, not union employees or officers); 27 Teamsters Joint Council No. 42 v. International Bhd. of 28 Teamsters, AFL-CIO, 82 F.3d 303, 306 (9th Cir. 1996) (noting that

1 29 U.S.C § 411(a) protects union members, not union employees or 2 officers).

3 Having reviewed 29 U.S.C. §§ 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5) and 4 the relevant case law, it is clear that Plaintiff has not and 5 could not have brought a claim under either of those provisions.
6 Plaintiff, at most, apparently anticipated a defense the 7 Defendant might raise that the disciplinary fine imposed against 8 him constituted an unfair labor practice in violation of 29
9 U.S.C. §§ 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5). A complaint, though, does 10 not raise a claim under federal law merely by anticipating a 11 federal defense. See Balcorta v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film
12 Corp., 208 F.3d 1102, 1106 (9th Cir. 2000) ("It is 'settled law
13 that a case may not be removed to federal court on the basis of a 14 federal defense, including a defense of preemption, even if the 15 defense is anticipated in the plaintiff's complaint. . . .'" 16 (quoting Franchise Tax Bd. of Cal., 463 U.S. at 14, 103 S. Ct. at 17 2848)). While Plaintiff may have worded its complaint poorly in 18 stating that the action was brought "pursuant to" 29 U.S.C. §§
19 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5), the substance of the complaint 20 demonstrates that it is merely an action for breach of contract.
21 See, e.g., Humphrey v. Moore, 375 U.S. 335, 352, 84 S. Ct. 363, 22 373 (1964) (Goldberg, J., concurring) (noting that substance of 23 complaint and not form governs whether a federal question is 24 raised); Spaulding v. Mingo County Bd. of Educ., 897 F. Supp.
25 284, 287 (S.D.W. Va. 1995) (same); McCastle, 514 F. Supp. at 938 26 (same). Defendant, in fact, recognizes in his response to 27 Plaintiff's motion to remand that the substance of Plaintiff's
28 complaint is for a state breach of contract claim. See Def.'s

1 Resp. to Pl.'s Mot. to Remand, at 2 ("On March 3, 2000, the IBEW
2 filed the present action asserting a state breach of contract
3 claim based on [Defendant's] alleged breach of the IBEW 4 constitution and by-laws of affiliated local unions.").
5 Accordingly, Defendant has fallen short of his burden of 6 demonstrating that removal was appropriate based on the statement
7 found in Plaintiff's complaint regarding 29 U.S.C. §§
8 158(b)(1)(A) and 411(a)(5).

9 B. Does Section 301 of the LMRA Preempt Plaintiff's Complaint?

10 The primary argument raised by Defendant in his response to 11 Plaintiff's motion to remand is that Plaintiff's breach of 12 contract claim is completely preempted by Section 301 of the 13 LMRA, 29 U.S.C. § 185, and thus arises under federal law. In 14 making this argument, Defendant admits from the outset that he 15 does not contend that a union's constitution and bylaws cannot 16 form the basis for a breach of contract action. He also admits 17 that a union's attempt to enforce a fine in state court is not 18 always preempted by Section 301 of the LMRA. However, he argues 19 that a state breach of contract cause of action based on a union 20 constitution is completely preempted.

21 Based on U.S. Supreme Court and state case law provided by 22 Plaintiff, it is clear that lawsuits brought by unions to collect 23 fines imposed on union members for violations of union rules 24 constitute actions for breach of contract and are governed by 25 state contract law principles. Accordingly, such actions do not 26 arise under federal law and are properly brought in state court.
27 See NLRB v. Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co., 388 U.S. 175, 182, 87 S. Ct.
28 2001, 2007-08 (1967) (noting that judicial view is that provision

1 defining punishable conduct by union members constitutes part of 2 the contract between the union and its members and that a court's 3 role is only to enforce the contract); Scofield, 394 U.S. at 426 4 n.3, 89 S. Ct. at 1156 n.3 (noting that disciplinary actions to 5 enforce union rules against members is a "federally unentered 6 enclave open to state law," and that "regulation of the 7 relationship between union and employee is a contractual matter
8 governed by local law"); International Bhd. of Elec. Workers, 9 Local Union No. 986, 602 N.E.2d at 787 ("Generally, the 10 provisions set forth in a union's constitution and bylaws, which 11 define punishable conduct and establish the procedures for 12 internal trial and appeal, constitute a contract between the 13 union and its members . . . [and] '[t]he courts' role is but to 14 enforce the contract' [S]tate law governs union lawsuits
15 to collect disciplinary fines." (quoting Allis-Chalmers Mfg., 388 16 U.S. at 182, 87 S. Ct. at 2008)); Walsh v. Communications Workers
17 of Am., Local 2336, 271 A.2d 148, 149-50 (Md. Ct. App. 1970) 18 (based on Allis-Chalmers and Scofield, held that union action to 19 enforce a fine imposed on a member is not preempted by federal 20 labor laws). Defendant, however, argues that a state breach of 21 contract action based on a union constitution is completely 22 preempted by Section 301 of the LMRA. He argues that Scofield is 23 inapposite in such a situation because it did not involve the 24 alleged violation of a union constitution.

25 Section 301(a) of the LMRA provides as follows:

26 Suits for violation of contracts between an employer and a 27 labor organization representing employees in an industry 28 affecting commerce as defined in this chapter, or between any such labor organizations, may be brought in any district court of the United States having jurisdiction of the 1 parties, without respect to the amount in controversy or 2 without regard to the citizenship of the parties.

3 29 U.S.C. § 185(a). Defendant is correct that the doctrine of 4 complete preemption applies in the case of claims falling under 5 the purview of Section 301 of the LMRA. See Balcorta, 208 F.3d
6 at 1107. Section 301 generally has been read to require complete 7 preemption of state law claims brought to enforce collective 8 bargaining agreements. See id. The Ninth Circuit has also held 9 that Section 301 completely preempts claims that require the 10 interpretation of a collective bargaining agreement. See Audette 11 v. International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, 195
12 F.3d 1107, 1112-13 (9th Cir. 1999).

13 Relying on Wooddell v. International Brotherhood of 14 Electrical Workers, Local 71, 502 U.S. 93, 112 S. Ct. 494 (1991),
15 and DeSantiago v. Laborers International Union of North America, 16 Local 1140, 914 F.2d 125 (8th Cir. 1990), Defendant asserts that 17 breach of contract actions based on a union constitution, in 18 addition to those based on a collective bargaining agreement, are 19 completely preempted by Section 301. He argues that because 20 Plaintiff's action requires interpretation of the IBEW 21 Constitution, it is completely preempted. Plaintiff, on the 22 other hand, contends that the plain language of Section 301 does 23 not cover the situation presented in this case, that the two 24 cases cited by Defendant are inapposite, and that its lawsuit 25 does not require interpretation of its constitution.

26 Plaintiff is correct that the plain language of Section 301
27 does not encompass the circumstances of this case. Section 301 28 speaks in terms of contracts between a labor organization and an

1 employer, or between labor organizations, not contracts between a 2 labor organization and its members. Defendant has failed to 3 provide any explanation as to how Plaintiff's complaint raises
4 any claim of a breach of a contractual obligation between a labor 5 organization and an employer, or between labor organizations.

6 Plaintiff is also correct that Defendant misstates the scope 7 of the Wooddell and DeSantiago decisions. Although the Supreme 8 Court did hold in Wooddell that a union member's lawsuit against 9 the union based on an alleged violation of the union constitution 10 fell within the scope of Section 301, it specifically limited the 11 scope of that holding as follows:

12 Does section 301 of the Labor-Management Relations Act
13 create a federal cause of action under which a union member 14 may sue his union for a violation of the union constitution?
15 As the text makes clear, the answer to that question is in the affirmative, but only if it is charged that the breach alleged violates a contract between two labor organizations.

16 Wooddell, 502 U.S. at 98 n.3, 112 S. Ct. at 498 n.3 (citation 17 omitted) (emphasis added). The Supreme Court reinforced the 18 plain language of Section 301, stating that "a suit properly 19 brought under § 301 must be a suit either for violation of a 20 contract between an employer and a labor organization 21 representing employees in an industry affecting commerce or for 22 violation of a contract between such labor organizations." Id.
23 at 98, 112 S. Ct. at 498. Unlike the plaintiff in Wooddell, 24 Defendant has not charged that any breach of IBEW's Constitution 25 violates a contract between two labor organizations. See also 26 Commer v. District Council 37, Local 375, 990 F. Supp. 311, 321 27 n.13 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) ("The Supreme Court in Wooddell held that 28 the subject-matter jurisdiction conferred on the district courts

1 by [Section 301] of the LMRA extends to suits on unions 2 constitutions brought by individual union members. The suits at 3 issue, however, were grounded on contractual obligations among 4 unions found within the union constitution. Wooddell does not 5 apply, as here, to claims where the purported contractual 6 agreement is between the individual member and the union."").
7 Likewise, DeSantiago involved claims similar to those in Wooddell 8 brought by a union member alleging that the local union had 9 violated contractual agreements with the parent international 10 union found within the union constitution. In contrast, 11 Defendant has not raised any argument that this case involves a 12 question of whether Local 640 violated any contractual agreement 13 with IBEW encompassed in the IBEW Constitution.

14 Finally, the court need not determine whether Plaintiff's
15 complaint requires an interpretation of IBEW's Constitution
16 because Defendant has not shown that any such interpretation 17 relates to contractual obligations between Local 640 and IBEW.
18 Whereas the issue raised in Wooddell and DeSantiago was whether a 19 local union had breached its contractual obligations with the 20 parent union as set forth in the union's constitution, the issue 21 raised by Plaintiff's complaint in this case is whether 22 Defendant, a union member, violated the provisions of IBEW's 23 Constitution. Plaintiff's complaint, as opposed to the claims in 24 Wooddell and DeSantiago, does not require any determination of 25 whether Local 640 violated any contractual obligation owed to the 26 parent IBEW union as contained in the IBEW Constitution. See 27 Def.'s Resp. to Pl.'s Mot. to Remand, at 4-5 ("[A] cause of 28 action that requires a court to ascertain the nature of

1 [Defendant's] duties under the IBEW's constitution involves 2 interpretation of that constitution and is preempted."). In 3 addition, the Ninth Circuit has explicitly held that a union's 4 lawsuit against one of its members for breach of the union's by-5 laws and constitution does not fall within the ambit of Section 6 301 of the LMRA. See Building Material and Dump Truck Drivers, 7 Local 420 v. Traweek, 867 F.2d 500, 507-08 (9th Cir. 1989). In 8 conclusion, then, Defendant has failed to meet its burden of 9 demonstrating that Plaintiff's complaint is completely preempted
10 by Section 301 of the LMRA. Accordingly, the court will grant
11 Plaintiff's motion to remand the action to Arizona Superior 12 Court.

13 C. Attorney's Fees and Costs

14 Having determined that it will grant Plaintiff's motion to 15 remand, the court notes that Plaintiff requested in that motion 16 an award of its costs and attorney's fees incurred as a result of 17 Defendant's removal of this action. Such an award of costs and 18 fees is authorized by 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c), which provides: "An 19 order remanding the case may require payment of just costs and 20 any actual expenses, including attorney fees, incurred as a 21 result of the removal." The standard set forth by the Ninth 22 Circuit in determining whether fees and costs should be awarded 23 upon remand is whether removal of the action was "fairly 24 supportable." See Schmitt v. Insurance Co. of N. Am., 845 F.2d
25 1546, 1552 (9th Cir. 1988).³

26
27 ³ In Balcorta, the Ninth Circuit held that in contrast to 28 the mandatory language used in Schmitt of needing to determine that removal was not fairly supportable before awarding fees and

1 Under the circumstances of this case, the court concludes 2 that Defendant's removal of this action was fairly supportable.
3 Plaintiff cited Supreme Court case law holding that union
4 collection actions constitute contract claims governed by state
5 law. Defendant attempted to get around this case law by arguing 6 complete preemption under Section 301 of the LMRA. Though the 7 case law he relied on in support of this argument was 8 distinguishable from the circumstances of this case, he, 9 arguably, could urge otherwise. Second, and more importantly,
10 Plaintiff itself invited the removal by alleging in its complaint 11 that the case was brought "pursuant to 29 U.S.C. §§ 158(b)(1)(A) 12 and 411(a)(5)." Plaintiff cannot now seek fees for managing to 13 prevail on its motion to remand despite that invitation.
14 Accordingly, the court will deny Plaintiff's request for an award 15 of the reasonable costs and expenses, including attorney's fees, 16 that it incurred due to Defendant's removal of this action.

17 IV. CONCLUSION

18 Defendant raised two arguments as to why removal of this 19 action was proper: (1) Plaintiff's complaint by its own terms
20 stated that it was brought pursuant to federal law; and (2)
21 Plaintiff's complaint is preempted by Section 301 of the LMRA.
22 For the reasons stated above, the court does not find merit to 23 either of these arguments, and therefore will grant Plaintiff's 24 motion to remand this action to Arizona Superior Court. The 25 _____
26 costs, a district court would be within its discretion to award 27 fees even if the removal was fairly supportable. In so doing, 28 however, the court did not alter the fact that a district court is within its discretion in awarding fees if the removal was not fairly supportable. See Balcorta, 208 F.3d at 1106 n.6.

1 court, however, will deny Plaintiff's request for an award of its 2 attorney's fees and costs incurred due to Defendant's removal of 3 this action. Finally, because the court will grant Plaintiff's
4 motion to remand, Defendant's motion to dismiss and Plaintiff's 5 motion for an extension of time to respond to that motion to 6 dismiss are both moot and will be denied as such.

7 IT IS ORDERED granting Plaintiff's Motion to Remand Action 8 to State Court, filed May 24, 2000 (doc. 3). The Clerk of the 9 Court is hereby directed to remand this case to the Arizona
10 Superior Court in Maricopa County.

11 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED denying Plaintiff's request for 12 reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred due to Defendant's 13 removal of this action, filed May 24, 2000 (doc. 3).

14 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED denying as moot Defendant's Motion to 15 Dismiss, filed June 12, 2000 (doc. 4).

16 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED denying as moot Plaintiff's Motion for 17 Enlargement of Time to File a Response to Defendant's Motion to 18 Dismiss, filed July 13, 2000 (doc. 8).

19 DATED this 25 day of August, 2000.

20
21
22
23 Robert C. Broomfield
24 Senior United States District Judge

25 Copies to counsel of record

26

27

28